Receive Payroll Tax Breaks for Giving Your Commuters a Tax Break

Everybody Makes Money. How does it work?

Federal law allows transit fare discounts up to $1260 per year per employee as a pre-tax payroll deduction or tax-free employee benefit. Not only do your employees receive a raise by not having to pay tax on transit expenses, but also each pre tax or tax-free dollar reduces your payroll tax expenses. Additionally, in many cases, the expense for implementing a commuter tax benefit program at your company is fully tax deductible.

There are Several Ways to Benefit from This Tax Code

The law requires a commuter tax benefit program must take advantage of a voucher program or direct transit pass distribution system if such a program is available. Currently, the Bay Area has two programs that allow you to legally benefit from this tax code.
